If the fair value of the leased asset exceeds the present value of the minimum lease payments, the latter is used for recognition.

Lease payments under finance leases are apportioned between finance charges and reduction of the lease principal. Finance charges are allocated to each accounting period during the lease term at a constant periodic rate of interest on the remaining balance of the liability for each period.

Assets acquired under finance leases are depreciated using the straight-line method over their estimated useful lives, similar to owned assets, in case of the lease term is shorter, specifically as follows:

Investment properties are depreciated using the straight-line method.

Provisions are not recognized for future operating losses.

Provisions are recognized based on the estimated costs required to settle the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, the provision is measured at its present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the liability. The increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognized as borrowing costs.
